It is thought that the Rothschilds will withdraw their support from the German loan scheme to China when they understand that behind the estensible purposes of the loan, such as constructing railways, improving defenses and the like. there is a vast project for the injury of the English trader. The Frunkfurter Zeifung calls attention to the London correspondence of the Paris Journal des Debats on the subject, and observes that the tone and tendency of the correspondence is anything but friendly. The communication has been obviously dictated by the wish to checkmate German business plans as far as possible through Paris.

A CHINESE MONACO

It is a truism to say that gambling is propensity innate in the Chinese, and many and divers are the ways in which they contrive to gratify it. Notwithstanding the penal laws of the native code against gambling, it flourishes to an appalling extent in Canton, where the streets in the neighbourhood of the Steamer Wharf are obstructed by gambling booths; where fantan stalls are in scores, not only pitched within the court yards of the most sacred temples, but what is from a Chinese point of view stil more difficult to understand, within the gates of the very yamens themselves. Macao, gambling though as frightfully prevalent as at Canton, is made to appear more respectable and less demoralizing by its being protected by law and publicly fostered by the Portuguese officials. In Hongkong where it is neither fostered by the officials nor protected by law and in opposition the opinion of a large class, the vice, in spite of fines, imprisonment, and serious accid ents to life and limb, is so frightfully rife. that one ignorant of what is going on at Macao and Canton, might almost think that the increased difficulties and dangers attending its prosecution here gave to it an increased zest; but this is really not the case. for a wealthy syndicate of Chinese have made gambling easy by establishing in the City of Kowloon, almost within a stone's throw of the mandarin's vamen, a number of glaring gambling hells for the convenience of native and other sections of the Hongkong public. It is useless to say that such palatial establishments as these have been erected there for the poverty-stricken inhabitants of the native city, for three or four bed-boards, with a mat over them, and a capital of a few thousand cash, are amply sufficient to start a native gambling bank to this sort. The establishments we refer of form a square of handsomely-fitted saloons, resplendent with gold and carving forming a striking contrast to the sur rounding squalor and dirt, and are intend ed for quite a different set of constituents for launches have been chartered to convey customers from Hongkong to Kowloon, and ply hourly to a comparatively late hour in the evening. Every effort is made for the comfortable reception of visitors—cushioned seats. The other day he made an appointment with the Provincial Judge at 10 o'clock, and kept him waiting until 3 p.m. At that hour the Provincial Judge determined to return, so left word that if His Excellency wished to see him, perhaps he would kindly send a messenger. The next day, the Viceroy did send a message, and the Provincial Indoe came. The Vicercy then kept him in conversation from 10 o'clock in the morning until nearly dark. This is not the only time he has kept persons waiting to see him. He offended Pang Yuk Luu by keeping him waiting several hours. And he has treated in the same way, the Foreign Vice Consu's. He says it is unnecessary to guard the place, but the other officials disagree with him, so the troops are not withdrawn. Some of my friends tell me that the disposition of the Chinese towards us is any thing but kind, that 'kill,' butcher' and other milder epithets are frequently heard Sometimes in going about stones are thrown at them, and a howling mob follows behind. Personally I have not been much distressed. The other day in going into a temple with a friend were there followed by a large crowd hoot. ing and shouting, and as we were leaving a few stones were thrown at us but nothing serious happened. > London, January 18th .- A sonsation has been created by the publication of a letter from Prince Bismarck to the Pope, acknowledging the receipt of the Decoration of the Order of Christ, recently conferred on the German Chanceller by his Holiness. The letter commences by addressing the Pope as Sire, and says: Your kind letter and Decoration have greatly gratified myself and Emperor William. It then goes on to state that the Pope's words, that Papacy means to practice works of peace, first suggested to Prince Bismarck the idea of seeking the mediation of his Holiness in the Carolines question, and in deference to his faith and unweakened confidence in the Pope's elevated views and impartiality, he selected the Pope as arbiter of the dispute. Germany and Spain have no cause to complain of the terms of the protocol and the offect of mediation will be lasting. Prince Bismarck will not neglect the chances to attest his lively gratitude, highest devotion and deepest respect for his Holiness in the future. The letter is signed Your vory humble servant. ME CHINESE PTRACY AND MURDER CASE. Chang, or Choung Chi, the man charged with murder and piracy in Chinese terri-tory, and Wong Akin, alias Cheung Ayo, who was charged in connection with the same case, with piracy in Chinese territory, appeared on remand yesterday.

Mr Creasy Ewens appeared to prosecute on behalf of the Chinese Government, and Mr Wotton appeared for the first prisoner.

After waiting for a few minutes for the interpretor. interpreter, Mr Wotton rose to take objection to the manner in which the interpreter interpreted on the last occasion. There had been some opportunity of enquiring into the matter, he said, and the enquiry had led to the belief that a wrong interpretation was being made. Mr Ewen said that as far as he had had an opportunity of judging the interpretation was quite correct.

The Magistrate-From the information I received I understand he did misinter-

Mr Wotton said the impression he had formed at the time was that the man was NEW misinterpreting and that impression had IN been confirmed by those who heard the evidence. They understood sufficient to know that the interpreter not only put the question but also suggested the answer. In many cases he could prove by the evidence that the interpreter suggested the answer to the witness. This might have been done to some extent in ignorance, but it was a very serious thing in a case of this descripthe Court longer. Mr Ewens-You, I believe, have then no objection to the man. Mr Wotton-If that interpreter does come, I do intend to object to the interpretation given.

Mr Ewens-What is the use of the interpreter then ? Mr Wotton-It is my duty to get some body capable of cross-examining.

The Magistrate—It is pretty well made out to my satisfaction that he is not a good interpreter. Mr Ewens suggested that they should send a chair and coolies for the interpreter.

Mr Wotton (impatiently)-I do not know what good can result from our waiting here? The Magistrate said he might adjourn the case till Wednesday but then he could not fix on an exact time. He could only say about twelve o'clock.

"Mr Wotton-That is unsatisfactory; we had better get an adjournment for a week. Mr Ewens said he could not attend on Monday or Tuesday next week. The Magistrate said he would adjourn the case till Monday next and then he could re-adjourn it to Wednesday at 10.30.

The Court then adjourned, but the proceedings had scarcely been ended more than two or three minutes when the muchsought for interpreter made his appearance. It was then, however, too late.
